School Registrations

ATTENDANCE FIGURES BREAK ALL RECORDS IN CITY SCHOOLS

Registration of pupils in the city schools for the opening days this week exceeded all records, a total of upwards of 20,000 being recorded, while it is estimated that the grand total will ultimately reach 25,000. In the beach and bay districts the registrations were way over previous numbers and was marked by the opening of a new school at Mission Beach and the inauguration of the new Point Loma high school for seniors and juniors. The first days registration last Tuesday was given as follows: Ocean Beach, 355; Mission Beach, 60; Pacific Beach. 127; Point Loma "Hi," 386; Cabrillo, 116.

SMITH-HUGHES CLASSES

The Smith-Hughes classes for adult women in millinery and sewing will be organized next Monday, Sept. 14, from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m., at the O. B. public school. The classes will be personally conducted by Miss Zoe Drake, who requests prospective members to register as early as possible.

Alaskan Siwash Nite

"SNOWBALL BATTLE" NEXT FRIDAY NIGHT AT M. B. ROLLER RINK

Manager "Ed" Kickham has planned a great time for skaters at the Mission Beach Roller Rink for next Friday night, Sept. 18. It will be "Alaskan Siwash Night" and the chief feature will be a rollicking, rackety "Snowball Battle" in which everybody will have a happy hand. Then, too, there will be a most generous assortment of handsome Alaskan souvenirs for the ladies. Besides the special Friday night feature, the September schedule presents extra attractions for the Wednesday night mid-week skating frolic, when every lady in attendance will receive a pretty sewing or flower basket. Remember the two special nights next week, Wednesday and Friday. Go early and stay as long as you like.

CITY MANAGER RHODES REQUESTED TO REMEMBER MUIR AVENUE PAVING

While so many of the streets in San Diego are being ordered paved, why is Muir avenue overlooked? The papers were all filed and accepted over a year ago, and paving operations were promised, but no move seems to have been made for the paving. What's the matter, Mr. City Manager? Pease remember Muir avenue is your next listing for street improvement.

Seven and a half miles the lighthouse stood distant from the Herald's office. News of twelve thousand miles away is printed this morning, six hours after a train speeding for Verkne-Udinsk was overwhelmed by a great avalanche. According to official records, the lantern in No. 355 of the Twelfth lighthouse district, designated as Point Loma light, was lighted at sunset on the evening of November 15, 1855; and thereafter until some forgotten date in 1891 was regularly lighted at sundown and at sunrise extinguished. Whether or not two days after the 15th the inhabitants in Old Town were looking to catch its first glimmer matters not.

ALL POINT LOMA

In order to understand the significance of a lighthouse on this promontory in the year 1855, we may look for a moment at the whole of Point Loma in that year.

Mule teams were bringing the daily supply of drinking water from pools in the San Diego river, arriving at the lighthouse somewhere about noon. Those mule teams were a Yankee innovation. Oftener you would have seen ox teams. Carretas. A carreta winding down from Old Town to La Playa and struggling thence up the old road to the lighthouse—so late as 1855.

An ox cart on wheels that were made of solid rounds sawed from the giant pine was the family vehicle, as well as the public dray. For the señoras' use it was often covered with bright awning, lined with shawls and silk-embroidered pillows. Two tough black oxen, by means of ropes attached to their wide-spread horns, pulled to the accompaniment of shrieks and creaks of the greaseless axles. They pulled a minute, they roved unnoticed from side to side of the road, until one of the caballeros, mounted on a splendid prancing horse (never a mare ridden by your true Californian!) came to attention and prodded the cattle back for another minute's steady pulling.

Can you see that equipage? Following it, can you see, hear, smell a dozen or twenty-odd dogs, all howling, barking, fighting in a whirl of dust? What cared the guitar-strumming carreta-travelers whether or not the latest ship in port had come in last night by the gleam of No. 355 pouring from high Point Loma, or waited until the sun lifted by Cuyamaca to bring the sugar-crystals, the Boston boots, the Lima cuttings, the Virginia tobaccos?

In 1855 sea otters were being taken off Point Loma. The bay was said to be "alive" with seals, porpoises, black fish, turtles; with game-birds—ducks and brant predominating, and it abounded with game fish. There were oysters at La Punta at its head; clams and mussels along the sand strips and rocky ledges; abalones at the sea front. The supply of game and sea food was so vast that it seemed to fifty-fivers exhaustless. Cattle, sheep and native antelopes were roaming unclaimed upon the hills, through the short draws. A few wild horses still scampered here. That thin sneak, coyote, loped at dusk of dawn and of evening through the narrow runs which from time immemorial his tribe had worn through the wild oats, buckwheat and sage.

Point Loma was in 1855 a place remote. It was out of the path of happenings. Beyond raged the gold excitement of the north; nearer the cattle difficulties of this and adjacent counties. Point Loma was already forgetting its former prominence as the heat of Yankee hide-droghing business of Mexican times.

Richard Henry Dana revisited Point Loma in 1859 and has left the record of his emotions on beholding the scene of his early toils, twenty-three years previously:

"As we made the high point off San Diego, 'Point Loma,' we were greeted by the cheering presence of a lighthouse. * * *

"I wished to be alone, so I let the other passengers go up to the town and was quietly pulled ashore in a boat, and left to myself. The recollections and emotions all were sad and only sad.

Union League Club

COUNTY ORGANIZATION NEWLY FORMED FOR POLITICAL AND SOCIAL INFLUENCES

It is announced that articles of incorporation have been filed with the county clerk completing the legal formation of the "Union League Club of San Diego County, California." The papers were previously filed with the secretary of state at Sacramento, and, according to the articles filed, the purposes for which the club is formed are:

"To encourage and promote by moral, social and political influences unconditional loyalty to the federal government; to defend and protect the integrity and perpetuity of the nation.

"To inculcate a higher appreciation of the value and sacred obligations of American citizenship; to maintain the civil and political equality of all citizens in every section of the country, and to aid in the enforcement of all laws enacted to preserve the purity of the ballot box.

"To resist and oppose corruption and promote economy in office, and to secure honesty and efficiency in the administration of national, state and municipal affairs."

The new organization is patterned after the Union League clubs in other large cities such as San Francisco, Philadelphia and New York. Its membership is confined to registered Republican voters and its activities will follow the lines covered by similar social and political organizations throughout the country. The charter members and officers have been duly elected and the new Union League club promises to have a rapid and solid growth.

OIL PROSPECTS IN SAN DIEGO COUNTY CONTINUE HOPEFUL

Heman C. Cooke, editor of the San Diego "Mining and Oil News," states that much interest continues in the local field, although work has been stopped on three wells out of five considered. The Paradise well near National City, the well in Telegraph canyon and the Mission Bay well are awaiting additional funds before the resumption of actual drilling, it is said, while the Mission valley enterprise and the Palm City well are reported to be making good progress. The valley well has been drilled nearly 5500 feet, and at Palm City the water was shut off at 2885 feet, the cementing having been entirely successful and the latest word from the well is that a tough blue shale, or gumbo, had been encountered, which is considered to be a favorable indication.

DALY'S GREAT STORY OF SOUTH SEA ISLES PROVES VERY TIMELY

With the publication in "The Beach News" last week of the first installment of a descriptive serial by Charles H. Daly of his interesting trip to the South Sea Isles, much reader-interest is being manifested, and, incidentally, we blaze the way for an exceptional exploitation in San Diego of tropical themes. Two leading theatres are now announcing feature films picturing life in the South Sea Isles, while a well-known writer has followed Mr. Daly's lead in describing scenes and conditions in Tahiti and Papeete and the islands in general, all of which is published successively each week in these columns.

Mission Beach News Notes

For "The Beach News"

Press executive for Mission Beach Chamber of Commrce.

NOTICE TO ALL—The completion of the great sewer system necessitates the full co-operation of all Mission Beach property owners for the finished result, to-wit: The private connections from homes to the main line in alleyways. Let's all get together and connect up immediately. Keep Mission Beach safe and clean from "cesspool fevers and contamination." We petitioned for sewers, realizing a community necessity for the health and convenience of all. Now that the system is installed, boost your own growing business men in the plumbing business, with complete equipment, already living here on Mission Beach. Jim Warner and Floyd Strachan have offices here on Mission boulevard, and will be a most dependable firm to enlist for their plumbing services. Get connected up before the rains and high tides fill up the old cesspools.

We hope for the attentive ear of Mission Beach residents in more ways than one, to improve, build and beautify this glorious strand home-site. We want all the world to hear of us and about our fast development, and also to realize that we are a year-'round playground and home-site. I would like to get the names, addresses and ages of any little boys or girls who are already living on who contemplate residing in Mission Beach soon, for the wonderful purpose of a petition for A KINDERGARTEN in our fine new school. We have the finest of rooms ready in the building, but to obtain a teacher we must register the names of twenty-five children ready for kindergarten classes. Please list all you can and at an early date. Let it open with the new term. Write out, mail or bring to the writer of this column the required data. Or, if you will, simply register your child of kindergarten age at the school. Miss Louise Weller, principal, is awaiting your arrival and enthusiastically hoping to enlarge her school.

Mission Beach School

School opened with a bang, for Mission Beach (which last year started out with 17 pupils traveling via bus to Pacific Beach) enrolled on their registry over sixty pupils to date, and there are more coming to fill up the big room left there for kindergarten. Mission Beach grammar school is a wonderful asset. We are grateful to the Spreckels company for the donation of school land, and we thank the school board for quick action in placing a school here this year. The Mission Beach school is a new school of four rooms, built to take care of the new developments at Mission Beach. It has the following teaching force: Principal and fifth and sixth grades, Louise Weller; fourth and third grades, Saraellen Morgan; second and first grade, Mrs. Ruth Rockwell.

Last Tuesday evening the executive officers of the Mission Beach Chamber of Commerce held a meeting at the home of Harry Turner. They were an animated group of "progressives." Each subject was handled quickly, with each member ready for a new discussion. Some of the subjects taken up were: The establishment of new street car rate from Pacifi cBeach through North Mission Beach on to the Amusement Center, the new fare being 10 cents round trip. The city council has assured us the "lighting" question will be taken up at the Monday meeting, estimating approximately sixty to ninety days for completed installation.

The regular monthly meeting will be held Tuesday, Sept. 15, at 7:30 p. m. at Shirley cottage. This is to be a most important occasion, inasmuch as we are expecting City Manager Rhodes to talk for us and with us, answering questions. So come prepared to place all grievances and suggestions for our betterment before the chamber.

Milton Sessions, prominent landscape architect and horticulturist, will also be there to instruct and inform us of plants that will grow and be beautiful in our beach sand. We urge all citizens who are interested to attend early without fail, as it is of the utmost importance at this date to carry on the present business issues here before us—the sewer, the lights. Your efforts are needed now to correct and obtain results.

Floyd Schulze of Santa Clara place spent the week-end in the Laguna mountains.

Miss Eugenia McChristy of San Diego spent the week-end with Miss Alyce Barnhill in "Uncle Tom's Cabin" at Mission Beach.

Mrs. A. G. Edwards of 3634 Bayside Walk was pleasantly surprised with a party given by a group of San Diego friends last Friday. Those present were Mrs. Frank Reeves, Mrs. G. Koop, Mrs. A. Smith, Mrs. G. Anderson, Mrs. L. Travers, Mrs. C. Lundquest, Mrs. H. Jones, Miss Hazel, Miss Myrtle and Miss Pearl Anderson.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Barnhill and family, of Pacific Beach, have moved to their former home, 840 Pismo court.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. McCoy had as their guest this week Miss Cora Vaneto, of Phoenix, Ariz. Miss Vaneto is a school teacher. She was greatly impressed with Mission Beach and hopes to make her home here.

Mrs. B. D. Schulze, who has been the house guest of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Schulze of Santa Clara place, has returned to her home in Los Angeles after a two weeks' sojourn here.

Mrs. A. G. Edwards entertained the Sunshine club last Thursday at her beautiful new home on Bayside Walk.

E. A. Greenway, of Los Angeles, with his family, spent Monday at the Esperanza flats on Ormond court.

The first of the week with its acceptable holidays lent a gala and festive appearance to the beach resorts. The influx of guests crowded Mission Beach for a few nights.

O. B. BASEBALL

Last Sunday the local baseball team went down to defeat for the first time in nine successive games, when they crossed bats with the La Jolla club on the latter's grounds. The final score stood 12 to 2 in favor of the La Jolla bunch, who got their eyes on the ball and secured a good lead right from the jump. The Beachites made a strong effort at rallying, but were unable to overcome the initial strenuousness of their opponents.

A return game on the local diamond last Monday (Labor Day) also proved disastrous for the beach club, Toomey being walloped for four runs in the first frame. Castro was put on the mound and held the visitors down for the rest of the game. However, the damage had been done and the beachites managed to cut the lead in half, with the wind-up of 4 runs to 2. There's another day coming, and Manager MacBride hopes to hang the La Jolla scalp on his belt yet, while all his players are thirsty for revenge.

Lure of the South Sea Isles

Written for "The Beach News"
By CHARLES H. DALY (Book Rights Reserved)

It is indeed a wonderful sight to go through the market at Papeete. The market hours are from 5 to 7 a. m., so as to avoid the heat of the day. Perhaps two-thirds of the market vendors are Chinese. It is a treat to watch them cut meats. They cut it in chunks, not in special cuts—the neck bringing the same price as the loin or rib.

I priced some of the meats, and found them very reasonable and much cheaper than in the United States. Fruits, as I said before, are very plentiful and include most every tropical kind that's grown.

Vegetables are very scarce, and high priced ,as they do not do well in this climate. Canned vegetables from New Zealand and the United States are in great demand.

Living conditions here, as elsewhere, are going up. If one stops in a hotel, eats in the best cafes, you will find it costs fully as much as in any American city. If one is going to remain for any length of time in Papeete, it would be best to rent a house, which can be secured by careful looking, at from $4 to $10 per month. Then employ a good Chinese boy. Or, if preferred, one might secure the services of a nice native woman, or girl. Either the Chinese, or native, can be had at a very reasonable price, compared to prices in the United States. This is the best way to live in Tahiti—and you can have your meals prepared as you desire.

If one lives in the city of Papeete, you can have a great many of the modern comforts such as electric lights, ice delivered at your door, and running water, which is claimed to be 100 per cent pure. The city has a very fair water system, with a gravity pressure. The water is stored in the mountains, and is well protected from contamination.

But should one care for a beverage that we used to have "in the good old days," it's here, and very reasonable compared to our prices in pre-Volstead days. Also a modern brewery is running full blast. It is said that this beer (without the NEAR) would make that famous beer once brewed in Milwauke jealous if it had not been knocked out by the eighteenth amendment. The warm climate makes this product popular.

Papeete, Tahiti is the headquarters for the French government of the islands. The population is about 4,000, and perhaps two-thirds are Chinese, the balance French and natives, with a scattering of English and Americans. Anyone going to remain on the islands should have some knowledge of French, or the native language. Of course in town you can always find some merchants and others who speak English.

There are quite a number of very fine homes in Papeete. The government buildings are quite imposing.

The streets are kept fairly clean, and in dry weather are watered by an auto sprinkling tank. This is only in the business section.

The roads are just fair. A great many cars are in use, and some very fine ones. The natives make fine chauffeurs, and the ones the writer went out with could do most anything with a car, or go most anywhere over roads that seemed impassable—and impossible. They are also very careful. With one exception, the hotel accommodations are not good; that exception is the Tahiti. It is conducted by Oscar Nordman, a gentleman in every sense of the word. He will do most anything in his power to make things pleasant for his guests—or anybody else. His native hospitality is shown in his every act. He is a complete bureau of information, and speaks several languages, including English. His father was an American of Swedish parents, and his mother one of the leading members of the best Tahitian families. Mrs. Nordman, his charming wife, is also on the job with her smiling face, and trying to make those around her happy.

Papeete is 1100 miles south of the equator, and climatic conditions are excellent—outside of our world-renowned climate of San Diego. It will run us a close second. I am told the thermometer never goes above 85 degrees, and seldom exceeds 75, as the trade winds from the surrounding ocean moderate the heat. As the writer was there during the winter season, he found the climate at its best—very much like our San Diego summers, only more humid. It hardly ever goes more than two weeks without rain—even in the dry season, which is winter there.

There are quite a number of cocoanut plantations on the island of Tahiti, one in particular of about 30,000 trees, the others are smaller, most of the copra coming from wild groves. There are hundreds of vanilla plantations, and it is claimed that Tahiti produces nearly half of all the vanilla grown in the world. The principal exports are copra, mother-of-pearl, vanilla beans, cocoanut oil and cake.

The natives are a fine people—and the women are considered handsome—in particular where they are mixed with the white race. The girls have a very erect form; they dress quite nifty, wear bright colors, and certainly are pleasing to the eye. But they do not dress this way all over the island. You may meet a girl of the above description on the principal streets, and later on meet the same girl in the outskirts of town dressed with a light cotton garment, and barefooted, but still pretty. I think one reason for this is their pleasing smiles and manner. It is said that the native is lazy, and will not work, but from my observations around the hotel, where a number of girls were employed, I think this statement is without foundation. As it would be most impossible to get any girl in the States to work as I have seen the girls work around this hotel, putting in long hours, doing their work well, and with a smile. I cannot say the same about the male Tahitian. I believe he is by nature a lazy human, but he is also kind-hearted and will go out of his way to do you a favor.

Good Way to Lay Out Your Panels

How Paper Covering May Be Used in Satisfactory Manner.

The writer has been somewhat surprised in looking over the many published directions for building radio sets to note that, while considerable attention is often given to the proper layout of the different pieces of apparatus on the panel, and sometimes exact dimensions are given for drilling the holes and placing the instruments, no directions are given as to the best method of transposing these dimensions to the panel in hand or for the care of the panel while drilling.

Old Method Unsatisfactory.

Anyone who has tried the old method of clamping or pasting a piece of paper to the face of the panel and drawing the layout on this paper before drilling knows how hard it is to do a good job in this manner because the paper tends to bulge and sag at different spots if clamps are used. In addition to this, the clamps are in the way during the drilling and are likely to slip and throw the holes out of alignment, as well as to mar the highly polished surfaces.

The following method has been used for some time by the writer and has proved highly satisfactory: A piece of tough wrapping paper is secured and cut as shown in the diagram. This paper should be twice the width of the panel plus two inches in one dimension and as long as the panel plus six inches in the other. The corners are then cut out as shown and the edges and ends creased along the dotted lines.

The paper should next be laid out flat on a smooth surface and rubbed evenly with a damp cloth until the entire paper shows damp on the opposite side. The panel should now be placed face down in the center of the paper and the two edges lapped over and glued. The ends should then be folded down and glued over the folded edges, thus forming a closely fitting envelope around the panel.

Drying the Panel.

The covered panel is now placed in the sunshine or close to a warm stove or radiator and allowed to dry. When wet, the paper expands a considerable amount, and being placed over the panel in that condition, it will gradually shrink as it dries and so become stretched as tight as a drum across the panel.

The desired panel layout can now be drawn on the smooth side of the paper and the holes to be drilled can be marked and center punched. There is no danger of the paper slipping and the panel is protected on both sides until all machine work has been done. Then the paper can be torn off and the panel will emerge in perfect condition.

Serviceable Three-Tube Regenerative Receiver

The diagram of a good regenerative receiver is given here. The primary of the coupler consists of about 15 turns of No. 22 wire wound on a 3-inch tube. The secondary is made of 50 turns of the same wire wound on a 3¼-inch tube. The tickler coil contains 30 turns of wire similar to that used on the other coils wound on a 8-inch tube. Two 8½ to 1 ratio audio transformers are recommended. The arrangement shown used with 45 volts on the plates of the amplifiers does not require a separate "C" battery. The values of the rheostats are not given, as they depend on the kind of tubes that you will use.

Spaced Coils Easy to Wind

It is a simple matter to wind a coil with each turn of wire spaced a short distance from the next one. Start the coil with thread and wire at the same time, applying considerably more tension to the wire than when no thread is used. After the coil is wound and the end of the wire fastened, the thread may be unwound. It is much easier if you can persuade a friend to hold a spool of wire in one hand and a spool of thread in the other while you use both hands to turn the coil [cut].

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

THE JAGUAR

The Jaguar had heard a conversation between the Lion and the Tiger.

Each had been doing much talking. The Tiger had been saying that the Lion spent most of his time in roaring, while he, the Tiger, did the clever things in life.

What the Tiger had said was perfectly true, but it had made the Lion angry and he had roared more than ever.

"Well," said the Jaguar, "as I am almost as large as the Tiger I think I ought to be heard from, too."

"What do you mean when you say you ought to be heard from?" asked a young Jaguar, a new arrival in the zoo.

"I mean that I ought to tell you something about myself," the Jaguar said.

"Well, why don't you?" asked the young Jaguar.

"I believe I will," said the Jaguar.

"Ha, ha," said King Lion, "I am not the only one who wants to boast."

"Nor I," said the Tiger.

"I didn't say I was going to boast," snarled the Jaguar.

"I remarked that I should be heard from and that I should tell something of myself.

"I may tell something very, very dreadful."

"Not much chance of that," said King Lion, tossing his mane and looking very proud and superior.

"Not much chance of that," said the Tiger.

Even the young Jaguar added:

"Not much chance of that."

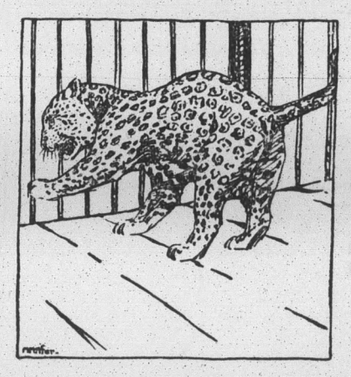
"Maybe not," said the Jaguar, "and again, maybe so."

"Oh, don't waste so much time," said King Lion, "go on with your story."

"That's the right idea," said Tiger.

"Yes, go on with your story," said the young Jaguar.

"Ah, you're all interested," said the



"I Am the Fine Jaguar, I Am."

Jaguar, "for there is no other reason in wanting me to hurry.

"You're not going to catch a train, as folks say, King Lion.

"Nor you, Tiger.

"Nor you, Jaguar."

"No, I'm not going to catch a train," said King Lion. "I wouldn't go on one of the silly, puffing things.

"I don't have to puff, for I can roar."

"I don't have to catch a train, it is true," said the Tiger. "Nor do I think that a very sensible remark."

Even the young Jaguar agreed with this.

"I thought I was going to have a chance to speak," said the Jaguar.

"To be sure," said King Lion. "I'm only waiting for you to begin."

"Only waiting for you to start," said young Jaguar.

"Only waiting for you to commence," said the Tiger.

"Then let me get started," growled the Jaguar.

"Let him get started," said the Tiger.

"Let him get started," said young Jaguar.

"By all means, let him get started," said King Lion. "Not, of course, for a train, but with his story."

"That's what we mean," said the Tiger.

"Yes, that's what we mean," said the young Jaguar.

"Well," said the Jaguar, "I will tell you.

"I came from South America and I had a very exciting trip here.

"I came in a boat, I did, and so I know about boats, even though trains are beneath my notice.

"Every one admired my handsome yellow coat, my strength and my beautiful big head.

"Yes, I am the fine Jaguar, I am."

"True," agreed the young Jaguar.

"He boasted, too," grinned the Lion, roaring again.

"He certainly did," said the Tiger.

"But my boasting made a true story," the Jaguar added delightedly.

Enough for a Penny

While waiting at the railroad station, Brown put his six-year-old daughter on the slot scales. "Only 40 pounds?" he said. "You ought to weigh more than that."

"Well, daddy!" exclaimed the little girl, "isn't it enough for a penny?"

Everything Counted

Esther went for a picnic with some friends. When she got home she said "I want something to eat."

"Why," said her mother, "didn't you have lunch with the Smiths?"

"Yes," she answered, "I had some, but everything was counted."

Community Building

Every Citizen Owes Duty to Community

It is a duty of great importance for every citizen of city or town to give his unlimited aid in improving his community, Rosabelle Houston writes, in Grit.

A well-appearing city not only voices the lives and characters of a mass, but of separate individuals. Every citizen should make it his duty to not only improve his own surroundings, but to improve those of his neighbor by suggestion and helpful aid.

By experience many people have found that beauty and order draw out the best in them and make them aspire to do higher, more noble deeds. A mean, narrow mind cannot long exist in a location where beauty, order and peace are a law and a religion. The far-seeing, thinking parent should see that the growing minds of the home, from babyhood, receive the benefits derived from order and cleanliness. If all the parents of our country would only endeavor to set an example of cleanliness and neatness before the eyes of their children, the school and social organizations would not be confronted with the problems that they are today.

Mistake to Postpone Proper Use of Paint

Although paint improves appearances, and many people paint buildings for that reason alone, the chief purpose of painting should be to preserve buildings, fences and implements from the effects of the weather. The cheapest way to keep buildings in good condition is to paint them at regular periods. The farmer who does his own painting has a decided advantage if he has a knowledge of the different kinds of paints and their adaptability. He knows how to mix paint, prepare the surface to be painted, how to put the paint on, and he knows the same about whitewashing. Farmers nowadays do not put as much thought on these things as they used to, especially in some sections of the country. Painting should not be put off too long, because if the wood has begun to rot, or the iron has begun to rust, the rotting and rusting will continue after the paint is applied. Besides, the longer painting is put off the harder and more expensive it becomes.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Protection From Fire

Wood frame is inflammable. Hence measures should be taken—not to prevent its use—but so to protect it that the fire is resisted. There are important points in every rsidence where fires are likely to start. These, too, should be made able to resist the greedy tongues of flame. Unless a home becomes safe in itself it becomes a menace to all others around it. In cities of any size the houses and apartments are building closer to one another. Compactness and space conservation is the thing. But compactness increases risk and the public must be made to realize the dangers.

Great conflagrations can show them the way, but the losses are too appalling for the example. Exposition of facts is the real road to the mind of the great mass of citizens. Fire prevention societies, therefore, can do no greater service than to spread their valuable propaganda to architects and builders—the men who hold the leash to the fire risks in buildings. These men, with arguments given them by specialists, will be only too glad to make the houses they design and build safe for home owner and community.

Economy Worth While

Saving for a purpose is particularly stimulating, and above all when the saving is toward a home. For years we have been saying, save, save, save. Such admonition has little effect unless back of it there is a clearly defined purpose. We do our best only when we are saving for something definite. The object must be something worth while; it must have a strong appeal and it must be something possible of attainment.

Owning a home has a tremendous appeal to most men and women, it is something most of them can attain, and might be more stressed as the end of saving by a greater number of building and loan associations.—Exchange.

Making a Bigger and Better Omaha is not the work for committees or groups. It is the work of every citizen. If you have an idea that there is something the matter with Omaha, forget it long enough to investigate yourself. You may make the astonishing discovery that the matter is with yourself, not the city.—Omaha Bee.

With Cheerups and the Quixies by Grace Bliss Stewart

LIZZIE LIZARD'S LOSS

"GECK—geck—geck-o, Geck—geck—geck-o," came a plaintive little sound from right under Cheerups' toes. "I'd like to speak to you, if you please," continued the small voice.

Cheerups was sitting on the edge of a toadstool, merrily swinging his feet and wondering what kind of visitor he would have next, when this tiny sound fell on his ears. He looked down and there on the ground was what seemed to be a small green lizard. It looked like a lizard and yet it didn't, for lizards have tails and this one hadn't a speck of a sign of a tail.

"No, of course you don't know me," cried this little creature. "I am Lizzie Lizard and they call me a Gecko because that is what I say when I sing. But nobody would recognize me now, I am so changed. It serves me right, I suppose, for ever leaving my good home on the ceiling. Sometimes, though, one does long for a little adventure, so this morning I went out of doors and got my tail snapped off for my pains. I was having such a nice glide along the garden path when all of a sudden Mr. Secretary Bird swooped down and made his breakfast from my beautiful green tail."

"Of Course You Don't Know Me," the Little Creature Said.

"That's just a shame, Lizzie," said Cheerups, for he had a very tender heart. "I am most dreadfully sorry. Tell me something about yourself. Where do you live?"

"We Geckos live in the homes of men, in hot climates all over the world, and they like us and never do us any harm because we are so useful," replied Lizzie. "Do you see these fat swollen-looking toes of mine They are little suckers which make me able to climb up walls or windows and even to stick to ceilings. That is where I love to stay and catch flies for a living. Two or three lizards will keep a house entirely free from insects. But, oh dear, what do I care about my useful feet if I haven't any beautiful tail? I was so proud of it! Now I might as well be going," sobbed Lizzie mournfully. "I just came to you for a bit of sympathy. I am sure no one can help me."

"Now wait a minute, Lizzie dear; don't be downhearted!

"Open your ears and shut your eyes
And I'll tell you something to make you wise," sang Cheerups merrily.

Lizzie wiped her eyes on a blade of grass, shut them promptly and listened with all her might.

"If you will be patient and cheerful, forget all about your troubles and go on doing your duty at home as usual, all at once you will find that a beautiful new tail has grown in place of the old one. Mother Nature just whispered that into my ear," chirped Cheerups, "and so I know it's true:

"Don't grieve
But just believe."

Lizzie beamed all over with gratitude.

"I will begin to forget my troubles right away, and I'll do my duty as soon as I get home. Good-by and thank you a whole heartful," cried she, with a little wiggle of joy, as she slipped off through the tall jungle grasses.

Sally O'Neill

This popular "movie" star, the newest Cinderella of the screen, won fame overnight when she was "discovered" by a prominent producer and given the leading part in a well-known production. She was only sixteen—a very short time ago, and just out of school—when she was chosen for lead parts in pictures. Miss Sally had had no previous experience in any branch of theatrical work.

THE WHY of SUPERSTITIONS

By H. IRVING KING

HEARTSEASE

A COMMON kind of smartweed—the polygonum persicaria of the botanists—is, in many parts of the United States, called heartsease because of the heartlike marking on its leaves and is supposed to be a cure for diseases of the heart. Also there are a considerable number of plants in this country of different species which are known popularly as rattlesnake masters and supposed to be a cure for the bite of venomous snakes. Very many of these latter plants have some peculiarity about their roots or foliage or stems which suggests a snake.

The belief in the medical efficacy of the heartsease and the rattlesnake masters is simply a continuance of the ancient superstition of the "doctrine of signatures," which was in turn evolved from the sympathetic magic idea of primitive man—sympathetic magic of the homeopathic variety. The medical superstition of the doctrine of signatures was highly regarded by the ancients and continued unchallenged down to nearly the beginning of the Eighteenth century; though Pliny, the great Roman naturalist, does, in one place, speak of the folly of the use of catanache in love philters "because of its shrinking in drying into the shape of the claws of a kite and thus holding the patient fast."

But from Pliny to Ray, an interval of over 1,600 years—and long before Pliny—medical science gravely accepted the "doctrine of signatures." In 1694 Dr. John Ray ventured mildly to question the doctrine and though he was looked upon as a dangerous innovator the ancient superstition rapidly lost ground until it was relegated to the folk-medicine department of current superstitions. The famous "doctrine" was, in effect, that plants indicated by their shape, markings, etc., the particular disease for the cure of which nature had intended them.

ADENOIDS

THE number of children afflicted with this disease is so great that I have no doubt the question is often asked by anxious mothers: "Is there any child that is free from them?"

Yes, there are those who haven't got them, and others who have very little trouble from them and who will get over them if they are properly brought up and have good food and good surroundings.

But other children are so handicapped by them and made so ill, that their removal is the only proper course, and this may be very easily done in most cases.

What are adenoids?

The mucous membrane of the throat and nose normally contains what is called "lymphoid tissue," which means tissue resembling lymph glands and lymph tubes.

When this is increased and forms lumps which project into the nostrils or the cavity of the throat, such lumps are called adenoids.

They may be no larger than a pea, or they may be of greater size and in bunches, like small grapes.

The larger they are, the more they will obstruct the air passage in the nose and throat, one who has them being compelled to breathe through his mouth instead of his nose, as he ought to.

The result will be that the mucous membrane will constantly be dry; dust and germs will find easy entrance to the mouth; and the development of the child thus afflicted will be hindered.

Nobody has any monopoly of adenoids; they occur at all ages, to the infant and the old man or woman, but they are most common and troublesome in children from eight to twelve.

In children, they are soft; they absorb poisons readily and furnish an excellent medium for the culture and development of disease germs. In adults, they are harder, and bacteria cannot grow so readily upon them.

Remember that children suffer most frequently from infectious diseases, and then you can understand how easy it is to catch them by means of adenoids and through the constantly open mouth.

Older children with adenoids are also unable to breathe properly while eating; their food is not thoroughly masticated and they, too, will suffer with imperfect digestion and poor nutrition.

Waking and sleeping, they are mouth breathers, they snore, they have bad dreams, and they have no control over the bladder.

Frequently there is a nasal catarrh, in such cases, the discharge running down upon the lips and into the throat and stomach; the appetite disappears, and anybody can see that the children are unhealthy and in bad condition.

"WHAT'S IN A NAME?"

By MILDRED MARSHALL

Facts about your name; its history; meaning; whence it was derived; significance; your lucky day and lucky jewel

ALTHEA

ONE of the most confusing names in feminine nomenclature is Althea. Extraordinarily beautiful and belonging absolutely to the aristocracy, it is constantly jostled and confused by a host of other names. Althea, be it said, is an individual. The name means wholesome, and not true, as is generally believed. The latter significance is generally given because it is confused with the name Alathea, sometimes known as Letty.

The real Althea, which comes from the Greek word meaning healthy or wholesome, belonged in ancient times to the unfortunate mother of Meleager. It persisted as a feminine name in ancient Greece, but is now more often used to designate a genus of mallows, or rather to allude to their healing power.

It comes to us through literary channels and maintains its somewhat isolated state, never having descended to anything like common usage.

As Althea is a rare name, so is her talismanic gem, the star sapphire. It is a jewel which promises her great achievement along artistic lines and protects her from evil. Saturday is her lucky day and 5 her lucky number.

A LINE O' CHEER

By John Kendrick Bangs.

A GOODLY RESOLVE

I'M GOING to hold my tongue today
Unless I've something good to say,
Some word or two of wholesome cheer
To whisper in my neighbor's ear,
And help him on his troubled way.
But if that something good comes by
And has to do with purpose high,
And worthy deeds by mortals done,
Or some right wholesome bit of fun—
Gee! How I'll let the phrases fly!

AMERICA LEADS

IN HOME COMFORTS

It has been said that the United States has no distinctive type of art, literature, architecture and other things which the old world claims as its own.

We will not argue this question, but we would like to point out a step in progress toward human comfort which is distinctively American, namely, the age of electrical conveniences.

What American would want to live in the average European dwelling or farm house? Even the hotels, except the more expensive ones, have few or none of the conveniences or luxuries which in this country are considered necessities in the smallest homes.

While we may not have developed a distinctive national type of architecture in the United States, we have developed a standard of house comfort which will be referred to in history as the "electrical home" period.

"One phase of radio reception which is generally overlooked and yet has a most important bearing on results," says Dr. Alfred N. Goldsmith, chief broadcast engineer of the Radio Corporation of America, "is the location of the lour speaker.

"It is astonishing how considerably radio music can be modified by changing the location of the loud speaker. A little experimentation along this line will generally produce worth-while results. Especially is this true in summer, when the static background stands out boldly unless the sound volume is reduced. The loud speaker, located indoors, will give more volume, but it will also focus attention on every little detail, static background included, no matter how faint it may be.

"On the other hand, if the loud speaker is brought out on the porch or on the lawn, little details of its voice are no longer discernible and only the main theme—music or speech—remains to attract attention of listeners."

Pirate Stars Remove Tonsils and Improve

Poor tonsils have been blamed for all sorts of things—but if they were a handicap to three members of the Pittsburgh Pirates, watch for some big records this year.

Three of the regulars reported minus tonsils as a result of operations during the winter. And none was slow last season, either.

"Pie" Traynor, one of the three, is back heavier and stronger. He hit .293, stole 24 bases and was third high among the regular third basemen of both leagues in fielding.

Johnny Gooch, catcher, had one of his best years last year, and starts 1925 minus tonsils. Ditto for Glenn Wright, shortstop, who made good in his first year in major baseball.

CONTRACTOR GEORGE FINLEY TAKING VACATION TRIP THROUGH CANADA

Following a long season of construction work throughout the beach district, George Finley left last Saturday on an extensive vacation trip to Canada, where he will join his wife, who preceded him a few weeks ago. Mr. and Mrs. Finley expect to prolong their northern tour a month or more and will probably dispose of their Canadian holdings for investment in beach property. Contractor Finley traveled by boat to Seattle and from there to Vancouver, B. C. Just before leaving he completed a number of contracts for the building of fine residences in different sections of the beach, and the popular contractor has arranged to construct several more upon his return late in the fall.

RADIO AND MUSIC STORE OPENED BY "JIM" BOWKER IN OCEAN BEACH

The attention of radio fans and the public in general is called to the double display announcement by the enterprising and well known "Jim" Bowker, who has opened a new radio store in Ocean Beach. For the present, the popular radio outfitter will have his headquarters in Cecil Carl's electrical store on Bacon street, but upon the completion of the new Strand theatre building, "Jim" will establish an up-to-date radio and music shop in one of the two stores adjoining the theatre lobby.

Mr. Bowker calls special attention to the fact that he is the sole and special agent in this district for the famous Gilfillan Radio, universally known as the superfine in Neutrodyne. Demonstrations are gladly given without any obligation, and the "Gilfillans speak for themselves." Builders of radios are requested to take cognizance of the "coast-to-coast" five-tube radio set, furnished all assembled, at an exceptionally moderate price. See and talk with "Jim" for full particulars.

Mr. Bowker also announces a real service department for testing and recharging batteries and testing and rejuvenating tubes, while the repair department is in the hands of an expert who has been constantly in the game since 1912 in the old code days. Already the ever-hustling "Jim" has placed several fine radio sets in Ocean Beach and Mission Beach, and his many patrons will be happy to hear of his opening a real radio and music store with prompt and satisfactory service.

For most of us September marks the home-coming from vacation land.

What a convenience it is to step up to the range, turn the valve and have Gas Service respond instantly to our demand! How many of us realize that the gas has been right there in the pipes waiting for us, ready to be used in large or small quantities as we desire, and to be paid for after we have used it?

Ther's no vacation for Gas Service. It's on the job 24 hours a day, 365¼ days a year, whether we're at home to use it or not.

THE HAND OF FATIMA

By VIRGINIA D. HOLTON

(©) by Short Story Pub. Co.)

DICK CRANDALL picked up the trinket only a moment too late to restore it to its owner. He recognized it at once as the Hand of Fatima, an oriental emblem of good luck, similar to one he had brought from Algiers last year to his younger brother.

In the young lady's mad dash from the New York to the Boston sleeper at Albany, she had lost the jewel from her gold chatelaine trappings. Crandall knew this because of the minuteness with which he had studied every detail about the occupant of the next section but one to his own.

He ran across the station toward the Boston train just in time to see it pull out. As he caught a glimpse of his fellow passenger through the rapidly passing car window, he held the jewel up and saw her dismayed recognition of it.

Stifling an unholy utterance against a providence which had defeated such a romantic means of introduction, he pocketed the trinket and barely gained the steps of his own sleeper as it moved off over the tracks leading to the suddenly detestable New York. Only twenty-four hours ago, with his fellow "frats" awaiting him there, it had seemed the most desirable spot in the universe. Such is the transforming power of love at first sight!

He seated himself with the poignant realization that he, as well as she, had lost something. When again would he ever see such an attractive bit of girlhood as the owner of the souvenir he possessed? She had just that elusive quality of dainty refinement he had always looked for as the chief charm to admire in a girl. For the young collegian was unconsciously exacting in his taste, and many friendships a less fastidious person would have enjoyed had been denied him on account of this critical trait.

He sought the smoking compartment, now empty. The half-smoked cigarettes piled up at his elbow, as he pondered over the diabolical trend of circumstances. Why had he not gone directly back to college? What kind of a shindy were those terriers framing up anyway, to perpetrate in New York? Could the owner of the hand of Fatima have been returning to school? Again the hopelessness of ever finding her began to weigh on his spirits.

He took the little emblem from his pocket for a more leisurely inspection. It was far more elaborate than any he had remembered seeing while in Algiers. Each finger nail was a small diamond, while the different fingers were ringed with precious stones.

His spirits rose with almost childish delight at the thought of wearing it. Certainly it would mount stunningly for a scarf pin! But he was too impatient to await that process. He thought of his watch fob. Hastily jerking the seal from its place, with almost tender care he fastened in its stead the newly found treasure.

"Pipe the fob, fellows!" was the greeting Dick received from the boys who met him. But no amount of teasing or bullying disclosed any information concerning it. Jack Owens, with an uncomfortably keen intuition, suspected a live-wire connection between the piece of jewelry and Crandall's strange disinclination even to join them in their pranks, where he had heretofore been a ringleader.

It was almost a week later that the students were corralled and herded off to college.

Dick's last hope faded when he received a reply, to his inquiry of the railroad company, that no one had applied to them for an article such as he described as having found.

The remembrance of the dainty beauty of the girl still held him enthralled when the Glee club started on its spring tour.

The first concert was to be given in the home town of a college for girls. Dick was their star performer on the banjo and was down for a baritone solo as well.

The college song birds filed into the dining room of the small hotel for supper, the evening on which they were to sing for the fair students.

Crandall had hardly seated himself when, from among a table full of young women near them, he saw the girl of his dreams.

"What's the matter—off your feed, Dickie boy?" inquired Fred Gibbs, sitting next to him.

But there was no room in Crandall's crowding thoughts for aught than the crisis of the moment.

The girl was seated facing him. Instead of showing any sign of recognition, as their eyes met, she turned her head quickly away. With furtive glances, the young man's hungry eyes devoured her delicately beautiful features in their frame of brightly massed hair. He resolved to make an opportunity of meeting her at the dance the college was to tender them after the concert. Dick Crandall was courageous enough to stalk a lion in Africa, but he balked at approaching any nearer than he was the girl whose acquaintance he so coveted.

He wondered how these young women happened to be taking their evening meal at the little hotel. Suddenly, as if in appreciation of their presence, Bruce Stanton gave the signal and these melodious, light-hearted fellows vented their exuberance of spirit in a drinking song. At its conclusion the glasses clinked with glances directed toward the girls opposite them.

Dick Crandall's clear voice suddenly ceased and his glass almost fell from his fingers as he beheld the girl of his fastidious choice eating her pie with a knife! His gaze became transfixed. Not one, but many mouthfuls did she take in this shockingly offensive manner! The blow was crushing! He could not reconcile such ill-breeding with the air of refinement the girl conveyed. He inwardly denounced the hand of Fatima as an omen of ill luck. He challenged the sentiment "Better to have found and lost, than never to have found at all!" In his misery he was forced to admit that she was impossible.

With a sigh he left the table along with the others, undergoing much upbraiding for leaving them to go to his room.

"Say, Dickie, you don't have to start to dress so early. You've got us all licked a mile in looks anyway," bantered James Stillman.

"Just wear that fob of yours and you'll put out their eyes all right," chimed in Brick Wellman.

Some indefinable impulse bade him to wear the fob, so that later when he appeared on the stage, more than one girl recognized the jewel that Betty Pattington had lost and the handsome young man she had since talked of by the hour.

Crandall's song was the hit of the evening. The whole Glee club felt he had never sung better and they shared his pride in the applause which demanded an encore. With charming abandon he sang "I know a maiden fair," directing many glances to the seat where sat a certain maid who truly looked tantalizingly fair. How deceptively patrician were her finely chiseled features!

In the recklessness of the instant, he decided to go in for an evening's fun. He would allow himself the privilege of basking in the radiance of her beauty just this once and he would try for the moment to banish the tragic recollection of the pie.

Less than an hour later, he bowed over Betty Pattington's atrociously bad-mannered hand in acknowledgment of his introduction to her.

Almost before he had straightened himself, she was speaking:

"Oh, Mr. Crandall, I cannot tell you how mortified I was in the hotel this evening." She blushed divinely, he thought. "The Phi Kappas were initiating me and because they knew your Glee club were coming, they made me do the humiliating stunt of eating my pie with a knife." At this juncture, Crandall with difficulty restrained himself from relieving the tension by a college yell. "I think after that initiation, I should be admitted to the Gates of Paradise, don't you, Mr. Crandall?"

"I have been," he said, promptly, voicing a thought of somewhat incoherent meaning to the girl beside him.

Catching the blank expression of Miss Pattington's face, he stammered: "I beg your pardon. May I see your program?"

And after one of the many dances he had daringly appropriated, Dick Crandall made the most important transaction of his life by bartering the Hand of Fatima in exchange for the hand of Betty Pattington.

Boyish Sport That Had Fatal Results

While "showing off," before his companions, Theodore Bray, fifteen, of Wharton, N. J., hung suspended by a rope around his neck from a trapeze. His companions thought it was a joke and left him hanging. The body was cut down three hours later.

A rope attached to a trapeze bar likewise caused the death of John Johnson, ten-year-old Jacksonville (Fla.) boy. He put his head in a loop formed for a hand grip. When a companion ran into a nearby school and said, "Johnnie looks as if he was choking," men rushed to the scene. John's knees were dragging on the ground. The lad died soon afterward.

A scarf worn by James Dress, three years old, caught on a nail as the boy was about to jump from a haymow in his father's barn at Finzel, Md. In trying to release himself he fell suspended and strangled.

Kenneth Waterland, a St. Louis boy, tied a shoestring about his neck and tried to walk a fence. He slipped and fell. The string caught on a picket and he was killed.

Unreasonable

Little Edward and his sister May had quarreled. After an early supper, mother endeavored to re-establish friendly relations, finally quoting to them the Bible verse, "Let not the sun go down upon thy wrath."

Turning to Edward, she said, "Now, Edward, are you going to let the sun go down on your wrath?"

Edward squirmed a little as he looked into her face.

"Well, how can I stop it?" he asked.

Married in Morgue

Miles Potter, an undertaker's employee in Jamesburg, N. J., and his bride, Miss Lillian Jolly, wanted to enliven their wedding ceremony and hit upon the novel idea of having the service performed in the county morgue. Their friends serenaded them and they then held a reception there.

To Immortalize Nurmi

A statue is to be erected at Helsingfors, Finland, in honor of Paavo Nurmi, the Finnish runner and athlete, who attained world fame at the Olympic games in Paris in 1924. Vaino Aaltonen is the sculptor working on it, and he hopes to complete it within a few months.

DOG'S GAMBOLS IN GRAVEYARD EXCITE NEWARK

Frolicsome Antics With Unseen Playmates Arouse the Superstitious.

Newark, N. J.—This is not a story for persons who laugh at ghosts. Neither is it a story for those who scoff at the undying loyalty of a dog after its master's death.

Fairmount cemetery, in Newark, is the largest burial ground in that city and John W. Good is its caretaker. Good has been employed in the cemetery for years and has no fear of a gleaming tombstone in the frosty light of a cold moon. Within the last month, however, Good and other persons whose homes overlook the broad expanse of mausoleums and burial stones have come to the point where they are not so sure about this ghost business. And all because of a little, scrubby, yellow dog who plays with invisible masters at dusk and at dawn.

A month ago a woman was buried in the afternoon. At dusk the Hound of Fairmount trotted into the cemetery, looked around, found her grave and calmly went to sleep on it.

Plays With Unseen.

For two weeks the mongrel kept his dusk-to-dawn vigil. Then Good decided that this circumstance was too eerie to overlook. He called on relatives of the woman and discovered that she never had owned a dog. That night the animal slept on another grave.

The dog's choice of graves on which to nap is not what disturbs the neighbors, however. It is his frolics with invisible playmates that has them curious and alarmed.

Leaping Up to Lick an Unseen Hand.

When the animal trots in at dusk he rushes up to an unseen something, wags his tail, leaps up and rests his paws on something and then he dashes away to grab a stick or a pebble and lays it at the feet of that same something. Often he trots along by the side of the something, leaping up to lick an unseen hand. At dark he and his friend cease to gambol and the dog goes to sleep on a grave. When the first flush of dawn lights the East he is up again to romp with the unseen. They play for half an hour. Suddenly the animal departs.

Dr. Joseph Craiger, 489 South Orange avenue, Newark, has seen the dog's antics, and he confirmed the weird story of the Hound of Fairmount and his unknown unseen companion.

Baruch Gives $250,000 'to Take Profit From War'

New York.—For study of the possibility of maintaining world peace by taking the profit out of war, Bernard M. Baruch has given at least $250,000 to the Walter Hines Page school of international relations at Johns Hopkins university, Owen D. Young, chairman of the trustees, has announced.

Investigation will be carried on at Johns Hopkins and at foreign universities, the exact amount of the gift to depend on the costs of the studies over a period of at least three years, possibly $300,000.

In a letter to Mr. Baruch regarding the gift Mr. Young wrote:

"By taking the profit out of the war we understand you to mean that you would limit profits through regulation so as to prevent profiteering. Certainly, an absence of such profits would tend to repress that jingoism which encourages war, and, if war were begun, to shorten rather than prolong it.

"If profit is eliminated from war everywhere, and if the mobilization of things and dollars is carried along on the same basis with the mobilization of men in all countries verging on war, there will be less likelihood of joining in the battle."

Steals Decalogue

Bayonne, N. J.—Here's one about a burglar who stole the Ten Commandments, thereby fracturing one of them.

He broke through the cellar door to Temple Emanuel and used a hatchet to knock the combination off a small safe containing sacred vessels and the commandments.

The safe was bare when the caretaker visited the temple in the morning.

BAD EFFECT OF LABOR MONOTONY

Repression of Human Energy Most Unwise.

Monotony of work and the insidious growth of pessimistic revery under conditions of monotony are serious problems of our "machine ridden" civilization. The mental life of man is dynamic; an effort to achieve is essential. Deny this effort, or leave it unguided, and there supervenes a mental attitude described by the Freudians as "repression."

It is possible, of course, for an individual to mold himself to a routine and to compensate his failing interest in life by taking pride in his rose garden, house or family, Elton Mayo writes in Harper's Magazine. But the compensating achievement is not always so fortunate, and in any case some degree of defeat is implied—"some of him lived, but most of him died."

The human desire to achieve is essentially social; there is a fundamental urge not merely to stand well with one's fellows, but also to collaborate with them in a social task. When this initiative is denied and turned aside it only rarely finds another equally satisfactory outlet. More often than not it turns upon and manifests itself in the form of disintegrating moods of pessimism.

There are few machine shops in America or elsewhere which do not run a noisy accompaniment to a rising tide of human defeat. This is not necessary; some enlightened employers have demonstrated that it can be avoided, but widely over the industrial field the assertion remains true. The machine shop is a potent agency of repression or perversion of human energy; that civilization disregards this fact is the great stupidity of our time.

This is stupid because it is unnecessary; civilization does everything to accentuate the problem, nothing to mitigate it. Under present conditions of education and social life the average individual inevitably develops irrationalities of attitude, superstitions, fears, hatreds. These minor abnormalities of outlook matter little if by a fortunate chance life offers such an individual a happily vigorous and sufficiently varied occupation.

But should monotony chiefly characterize his daily work his fears and superstitions grow, his mental garden is uncultivated and is overrun by the poisonous weeds of unhealthful revery. It is this attitude in the mind-behind-the-scenes of the defeated worker which gives rise to all forms of "unrest" and to the incessant shift of "travelers" from one occupation to another.

Dangerous Job

News photographers are accustomed to working in dangerous places, but G. A. Shoemacher of the army air service is said to be the only one who risks his life regularly by falling in order to take pictures, says Popular Science Monthly.

With three small motion-picture cameras strapped to his belt and a parachute on his back, this daring photographer, a senior instructor in parachute jumping, leaps from the wing of a Martin bomber.

As he falls, he looks about him calmly, taking photographs of bits of scenery or other objects of interest. If the parachute opens properly and he lands safely, he then has for sale several photographs that are of unusual value and interest.—Washington Star.

Electric Dredges

The channels of New York harbor cannot be dredged by the ordinary dredge because of the subway tunnels that run under it and at places come comparatively near the floor of the harbor. An ordinary dredge might dip too deep and break through the wall of one of these tunnels.

So the United States government, which has charge of all navigable waters, has had large electric dredges built. These dredges lower a great sieve and tube to the harbor bottom and then powerful electrically driven suction pumps draw up the silt which is clogging a channel without running the risk of damaging the transportation tunnels built below the harbor bottom.

Tree From Walking Stick

One of the largest trees in Hutchinson, Kan., has grown from a walking stick. In April, 1874, Judge W. R. Brown was walking along East Sherman street, twirling a cottonwood stick. Amos Plank was working in his yard when Judge Brown came along. "Well, I guess I'd better plant you a tree," the judge remarked, and he stuck his cane into the soft ground. Plank was called away from home for the summer. When he returned he found that the cottonwood stick had sprouted. Today it is the largest cottonwood tree in Hutchinson.

Practical Training

A specially designed seven-story brick structure has been erected in San Francisco for training firemen. It contains a room where the operation of sprinkler systems is demonstrated. Another room is, in effect, a chamber where the men brave smoke and try out various kinds of protective devices. The fire alarm system is studied in another room. The basement is used for instructing recruits how to enter burning cellars. Even the exterior walls are used for training in wall-scaling and in fire-escape work.

Formation of Habits Makes for Lost Motion

One morning I happened to be up early and went to a lunch counter restaurant for breakfast at about 8:40. The place was so crowded I couldn't get near the counter. But only 15 minutes later the rush was over and there were seats to spare, Fred Kelly writes in the Nation's Business Magazine. Which made me think that one of the silliest things about us human beings is our habit of all trying to be at the same place at the same time.

Why shouldn't there be more scattering of hours of eating and hours of labor? Why must so many reach their offices at about 9 o'clock? Why should not subway and street car rush hours be more divided? Not long ago I walked at 2 a. m. along a famous thoroughfare that a few hours earlier was bedlam. The street was quiet and delightful. I felt as if I should like to sleep all day when everybody else is getting in one another's way and do my moving about at night when others are asleep. Why not? Why couldn't more work be done at night? Half the men who go to offices at a certain hour do so only because the boss hasn't enough imagination to recognize that it isn't really necessary.

The chief statistician for a big institution tells me that when he occasionally takes a day off and works at his place in the country he is twice as useful to his employers as if he were at the office. Because he is in a quiet spot, free from interruption, he naturally accomplishes more work and his employers get the benefit. But if he were to ask for the privilege of doing all his work at home he undoubtedly would be regarded as a shirk. His employers like to know that he is at a certain desk in the main office. Because it is necessary for a few people to do their work at the office, the boss fails to recognize that it is not equally essential for everybody.

What a lot of lost motion may be traced to following rules and customs—to doing what is generally considered the proper thing!

Honolulu

Honolulu this time was a revelation. A magic wand had touched the place and transformed it, even as Miami and Los Angeles have been transformed. It is now a flourishing city in a setting of surpassing loveliness. There is life and progress and enterprise on all sides. The down-town district has become metropolitan and up-to-date. The mountain sides are terraced with beautiful houses to which perfect roads, flower-lined, wind upward under canopies of great spreading trees.

One cannot be long in Honolulu without observing the racial problems which confront its administrators. Over 42 per cent of the population is Japanese, while only 8 per cent is American, British and German. The remainder is divided between Filipinos, Chinese, Hawaiian, semi-Hawaiian and Portuguese. I have seen a photograph of 32 school girls, each of a different race or racial combination.—John T. McCutcheon, in Hearst's International-Cosmopolitan.

Her Own Fault

The train was about to start when the door of a compartment containing a solitary commercial traveler was flung open and a young woman entered and dropped into a corner seat.

After a while the traveler said, politely: "Excuse me, miss, but—"

"If you speak or annoy me I'll pull the communication cord," snapped the girl.

The train rolled on, and after a lengthy pause the young man made another attempt to speak, but again the girl threatened to give the alarm.

At last the train slowed up at a station and the traveler rose to his feet.

"I don't care whether you like it or not," he said, "but I want that bag of strawberries you've been sitting on for the last six miles."

His Indifference

"Hey there! hey!" yelled a hillside dweller to a bypasser in the big road. "I've just hearn terrible news!"

"Say you—p'tu!—have?" returned Gap Johnson of Rumpus Ridge, who was the bypasser.

"Yes! A feller come a-runnin' over the hill and told me another feller had told him that he's hearn they was a-tellephonin' out from town that the world is comin' to an end day after t'mor'!"

"Aw, well, I hearn suth'n' of the kind, but didn't pay no pertickler 'tention to the talk; I'm goin' down to Shellback — p'tu! — county t'mor'."—Kansas City Star.

Small Girl's Joy Ride

After climbing into a parked automobile and playfully releasing the brakes, five-year-old Jennie Verino of Providence, R. I., decided to see the thing through. She clutched the steering wheel gamely and remained with the machine while it ran wild down a hill and into a fence. She made several attempts at keeping the car in the roadway, and at one point shouted to a boy playmate to "get out of the way." She was unhurt, but the wheels of the machine were broken.

Too Many Reindeer

A census taken this spring in Sweden's northernmost department disclosed that the nomadic Lapps possess 183,625 reindeer. The animals have increased 57 per cent since 1921, when the last census showed 116,979. The present reindeer population is greater than is consistent with the amount of pasturage available.

Why Risk Neglect?

Are you lame and achy; weak and nervous? Do you suffer backache, sharp pains, disturbing bladder irregularities? This condition is often due to a slowing up of the kidneys. The kidneys, you know, are constantly filtering the blood. Once they fall behind in their work, poisons accumulate and undermine one's health. Serious troubles may follow. If you have reason to suspect faulty kidney elimination, try Doan's Pills. Doan's are a tested diuretic, recommended by thousands. Ask your neighbor!

A California Case

Mrs. M. E. Painter, 890 Wright Ave., Pasadena, Calif., says: "My back was lame and when I stooped, a sharp pain went across the small of it and I had to ease myself up gradually. Headaches and dizzy spells were common and I was nervous and irritable. Doan's Pills drove the trouble from me and the cure has lasted."

LATE SUMMER ENSEMBLES; MODISH SWEATER ESSENTIAL

IF THE ensemble vogue were languishing and needed a tonic, it would be found in the lovely late summer models in which two colors are skillfully used. But the ensemble is established in the mode, is thriving and breaking into new blooms that will strengthen its vogue for fall. Here is pictured one of them, showing a smooth-faced, woolen fabric in white, with a border design in lobster red. The coat is in the plain lobster with lining like the dress. It has a white fox fur collar and long ties of white and silver ribbon. The dress is cut with plain body and slightly flaring skirt. Pinings and buttons are sweater. To imagine a schoolboy or girl, or college student who does not own at least one sweater, more likely a collection, is impossible.

Perhaps the illustration herewith tells the story of the future for sweaters better than words. Long sleeve and high neck are ultimatum which has reached the public so far as fall sweaters are concerned—and they are to be quite tailored looking and of conservative styling so the mode declares. However, all this tendency toward the severe and conventional is counteracted by the happy note sounded in the new colorings. They are irresistible, these new color combinations, not always "color combinations" for if one's taste runs to solid effects, they are presented in entrancing shades, pansy purple being the very smartest. A plaited skirt of exact match should be worn with the purple sweater, for it is the color ensemble which bespeaks correct vogue for fall.

Ensemble for Fall Wear.

in red, the neckline high at the back, "V" shaped in front and finished with collar and revers.

A duplicate of this model in beige and black, with beige fur, would be fine for late summer and fall and a red and black combination with black fox commends itself for fall and winter. There are many border designs, in worsted fabrics, in the new fall colors, that are adapted to ensemble suits on the order of the handsome model shown here.

The ensemble suit is developed in the several different types of apparel for morning, afternoon and sports wear. Silks and chiffons in harmonizing shades of one color, or in two-

Another very interesting new color is carrot and its allied shades. The autumn trend toward blue is evident, especially navy with powder-blue continuing in high favor. Rust, green and orchid are all accented.

Turning from monotone colorings to color combinations, one is impressed with the prevalence of stripes, some running zig-zag like streaks of light-color combinations, lend elegance to afternoon ensembles, flannel, wool jersey and other woolens contribute a sports note to daytime ensembles in two shades of one color and more formal garments are developed in satin for afternoon ensembles, which prove very useful where made in a light and dark shade of one color, both for afternoon and evening.

In time of vacation prepare for the days "when school begins." Since "clothes" are such an important element of the schoolgirl equipment why not begin to plan now "what to wear"?

No more essential item in the school-time wardrobe exists, than that of the ning, others around and around rather than vertically. The model in the picture describes stripes in an intriguing effect of gray with chinese blue. Of course, the turtle-neck and long sleeves stamp this sweater as being of "very latest" style inspiration.

One of the charms of the newest sweaters is that they are for the most part knitted of very fine imported yarns. This insures a certain exquisiteness about them which is appreciated in the wearing, for there is nothing cumbersome or over-heavy in the modern sweater.

CAN LEFT-OVERS AS MIXED VEGETABLES

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Mixed vegetables are attractive and economical in salads, omelets, escalloped dishes and to use as garnishes for meat dishes. If the small quantities left from packing different vegetables whole are placed in one can, many desirable combinations can be made. A good combination during the spring season is young carrots. A mixture which the fall garden might furnish is peppers, celery, onions and small lima beans. Do not use beets in such combinations, because they will discolor the mixture.

All the vegetables are prepared separately as for canning and packed in layers in a well-boiled jar, according to United States Department of Agriculture specialists. Each layer should be packed as tightly as possible before the next is added. Fill jars with a brine. Put on boiled top and rubber. Process in water-bath canner either 120 minutes one day or one hour on three successive days, or 35 minutes in steam-pressure cooker under 15 pounds pressure.

Corn and Tomatoes Good.

Corn and tomatoes make a good combination to can. The resulting product is served as a vegetable dish. Blanch fresh corn on the cob five minutes, dip for an instant in cold water and cut from the cob. Scald tomatoes from 30 to 60 seconds and dip in cold water. Remove the skin and core. Chop tomatoes into medium-sized pieces. Mix thoroughly two parts of tomatoes with one part of corn. Pack the mixture in hot glass jars, add a level teaspoonful of sugar and one-half teaspoonful of salt to a quart. Fill jars with hot water. Put on boiled top and rubber and process 120 minutes in water-bath canner one day or one hour on each of three successive days, or 35 minutes in steam-pressure cooker under 15 pounds pressure.

A corn, tomato and string-bean combination is made by using one part of corn, one part of green string beans and three parts of tomatoes. The corn is blanched, dipped in cold water and cut from the cob. The string beans are cut into convenient lengths and blanched for four minutes. The tomatoes are blanched from 30 to 60 seconds and cold-dipped. Remove the skin and core of the tomatoes and cut into medium-sized pieces. Mix the three vegetables thoroughly and pack the mixture in hot glass jars. Add a level teaspoonful of sugar and one-half teaspoonful of salt, and fill jar with hot water. Put on boiled top and rubber and process in water-bath canner either 120 minutes one day or one hour on three successive days, or 35 minutes in steam-pressure cooker under 15 pounds pressure.

Concentrated Soup Recommended.

An excellent concentrated vegetable soup can be made from any desired mixture of vegetables. A tasteful combination to can consists of one quart of concentrated tomato pulp (tomatoes boiled down until thick), one pint corn, or tiny lima beans, one pint okra, and four teaspoonfuls of sugar and salt mixture—made by mixing sugar and salt in the proportion of one-third salt to two-thirds sugar.

To make the tomato pulp, cook together three quarts of sliced tomatoes, one small chopped onion and half cupful chopped sweet red pepper. Put through a sieve and remove seeds and skin. Return strained pulp to kettle and cook down to about the consistency of catsup. Measure, add the corn or beans and okra which has been prepared as for canning, with seasoning. Cook together for ten minutes and pack hot into jars which have been previously boiled 15 minutes. Put on boiled top and cleansed rubber, partially seal and place on false bottom in water-bath canner with water to cover.

If the single-period continuous method of processing is followed, boil for at least two hours. If the intermittent boiling process is used, boil for one hour on each of three successive days. Before each subsequent boiling, the covers must be loosened and after each boiling the covers must be securely tightened again to make sealing complete.

Processing under steam pressure is recommended. Quart jars should be processed 35 minutes under 15 pounds pressure. On removal tighten the tops, invert to test for leaks, and when cool put in a dry, dark, cool place.

BERRIES DRIED BY HEAT OF THE SUN

Avoid Unnecessary Handling and Rough Treatment.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Dried berries of many kinds are excellent for pies, puddings and sauce. Select berries which are fully ripe but not overripe.

Berries to be dried should be picked in the early morning hours. Do not allow them to stand in the sun or in deep layers in picking vessels.

No attempt should be made to wash the berries intended for drying, as the wet berries will soften and mat together in the dryer. Spread on the trays, holding the vessel of berries with one hand, and, while slowly pouring the fruit, use the fingers of the free hand to spread them in a close, uniform layer one to two berries deep. Protect them from insects. Avoid all unnecessary handling and rough treatment, as crushed berries spoil the appearance of the finished product.

Do not attempt to pick out leaves, bits of stem or green berries. These are readily removed after the berries are dry. Raspberries and Logan blackberries require careful handling, as they are liable to crush or flatten out when first heated. Spread them in thinner layers than other berries.

As rapidly as the trays can be spread, place in strong sunlight if they are to be sun dried, as they can be in most sections of the United States, or in a warm evaporator if artificial heat is employed. With artificial heat the initial temperature should be from 135 to 145 degrees. This may be gradually increased when the fruit is two-thirds dry to 150 degrees, with any berries except Logan blackberries and red raspberries. These should be started at 130 degrees F.

When the berries have dried sufficiently to be stirred without crushing, go over the trays and break up any thick clumps which are drying too slowly. The fruit is dry when it begins to rattle somewhat on the trays and when the berries no longer show moisture when crushed between the fingers.

When the berries are dry place in a large wooden or pasteboard box covered with muslin to exclude insects. Pour the warm berries directly into this box as they come from the dryer and every time a new lot is added stir the whole mass thoroughly together. The berries will at first become quite moist, but they will then gradually lose moisture until they become dry and hard to the touch. When ready to be stored permanently, return them to the dryer or oven and heat up to 180 degrees for two or three minutes to destroy any eggs of insects which may be present. Place immediately in sealed containers and store in a dry, warm place.

Kohlrabi Is Delicious When Young and Tender

Do you know kohlrabi, sometimes called turnip-rooted cabbage? It may be used when it is young and tender if it is to be eaten at its best. When it is no more than two or three inches in diameter this vegetable will be found quite delicious, says the United States Department of Agriculture.

To prepare it for the table, clean the kohlrabi, and cut off the leaves. (The very young fresh leaves may be cooked separately as greens, with or without a little chive or onion.) Pare the globe or bulbous stem, discarding any stringy or tough portions at the base. Slice it or cut into dice, and cook for about half an hour in slightly salted water. Season with butter, salt and pepper, and serve or make a white sauce and mix with the kohlrabi. Kohlrabi can be used in practically any dish in which turnip is used. It is milder in flavor, and not quite like turnip, though suggestive of it. The dark leaves and the white diced pieces from the globe portion make an attractive dish when served together.

Kipling Is England's Most Popular Author

Rudyard Kipling has been adjudged England's most popular author, in a competition held recently to determine her favorite authors. And the prizes were not books, but automobiles—eight of them. The prize winners were those entrants who placed the authors in the order established by their numerical appearance in the lists of all competitors. The old favorites who have held their own since the beginning of the century were well represented. The order of favorites as decided by the contest was: Rudyard Kipling, Thomas Hardy, Hall Caine Conan Doyle, H. G. Wells, Rider Haggard, Arnold Bennett, Ethel M. Dell, Joseph Conrad, W. J. Locke, G. K. Chesterton, Ian Hay.

Mining Men in Alaska Make Use of Airplane

It is becoming a common occurrence for mining men to use the airplane for trips between mining camps in the interior of Alaska and also in northwestern Canada. Norman L. Wimmler, placer mining engineer of the United States bureau of mines, recently flew from Fairbanks, Alaska, to Eagle, an airline distance of about two hundred miles, in less than three hours, says Compressed Air Magazine.

Two modern airships now make regular trips out of Fairbanks—thus bringing that center within a few hours' travel of Tolovana, Kantishna, Salaha, Circle City and other mining districts on the Yukon.

That Altered the Case

Husband (impatiently)—Is it possible, my dear, that you cannot keep those children quiet for a moment?

Wife (soothingly)—Now, John, don't be harsh with the poor little things; it is natural for them to be full of spirit, and they're doing the best they can.

Husband—Well, if I could have a moment's peace, I would sit down and write that check you've been bothering me for.

Wife (sternly)—Children, go upstairs at once! And if I hear another word from you tonight I'll punish you severely.

Shoes for Bird Dogs

As part of the equipment of bird hunters using dogs, an eastern sportsman recommends wool-lined, soleleather boots be laced upon the four feet of the dog. "This saves many nasty briar cuts, stubble bruises and sheds sand burrs. The dog soon becomes quite willing that they should be placed upon his feet, for he realizes after his first hunt that his feet are not tender and cut up as is usual when hunting rough and weed-ladened country," says this gunner.

Target Skill in Vain

Miss Catherine Murdock, treasurer of a theater in Kansas City, practiced shooting for months so that she might cope with thugs and highwaymen who are always expected at the theater box office. One day as she was taking $1,200 to the bank she was waylaid, and gave up the day's receipts without making an effort to shoot, explaining later that she couldn't kill a man for $1,200, and that to have shot would have meant death, as her aim had become remarkably true.

The Way of Authors

George Doran, the publisher, cracked a joke about authors at a farewell dinner that was given him in New York on the occasion of his departure for Europe.

"Authors," he said, "never think about money, and, every blessed book they write, they expect a royalty big enough to keep them from thinking about money for the rest of their born days."

Hen Has Rooster Plumes

Dr. Harry Beal Torrey, lecturing at the summer classes of the University of California, told the students that he had been able to grow rooster feathers on a hen and clothe a rooster in feminine garb. The change was brought about by administering capsules containing thyroxin, he explained. Doctor Torrey has devoted some years to the study of the thyroid and pituitary glands and by controlling the effects of the glands he has been able to change the pigment of the feathers, and by injecting hormones into the blood could make a chicken's white feathers barred with black.

TO MAKE FARMING YIELD BETTER RETURNS

The outstanding possibilities of co-operative marketing are more largely along the lines of standardizing and improving production, eliminating excess varieties, standardizing and improving grade and pack, stabilizing production, regulating flow to market, improving distribution as between markets, developing new markets, collective bargaining, betterment of financing, correcting trade abuses, and representing producers before legislative and administrative bodies, says H. E. Erdman, associate professor in California College of Agriculture. All of these should, of course, result in higher net returns, he says, adding:

"If I were to list the limitations I should put them about as follows:

"1. Co-operation cannot fix prices that are out of line with supply and demand conditions.

"2. Co-operation cannot eliminate the middleman. It can, and does, of course, establish the farmers' own agencies to take the places of private agencies and often puts one co-operative agency where several dealers formerly operated.

"3. Co-operation cannot reduce costs greatly except in so far as an increase in scale of operations makes for lower costs. Some of the gains of large scale operation, however, are dissipated because of tendencies toward extravagance.

"4. Co-operatives will not run alone. Constant attention is required on the part of the membership because 'what is everybody's business is nobody's business.'

"5. Co-operation does not permit the farmer to hold his products for a higher price without also compelling him to assume the risks of getting a lower price.

"6. The outsider often gets as much of the benefit of co-operative marketing as does the member, and in some cases gets more because he does not have to bear his share of main development expenses. This is a decided handicap to co-operation."

Real 5-Ring Circus

RINGLING BROS. AND BARNUM & BAILEY SHOWS GREATLY ENLARGED

At last the five-ring circus!

For years reporters have used this figure of speech to describe the bigness of the Greatest Show on Earth. Now, for the first time in history, patrons will actually find five rings when the greater Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey circus of 1925 comes to San Diego, next Wednesday, Sept. 16.

With the addition last winter of enough performing horses to bring the big show's total to 350, the problem presented to the Ringling brothers was, "How to handle five troupes of them in a single display?" The limits of the show grounds in many cities forbade lengthening the main tent. None of the stages could be spared. All were needed for the big collective groups of human actors. Then somebody suggested that though the "big-top" paraphernalia could not be cut down nor yet spread out, there was no reason why it should not be built higher." That suggestion was worked out and now, in addition to the three dirt-floored rings, two additional rings have been constructed to fit over the tops of the steel structured stages.

This is the greatest innovation since the Ringling Brothers started their super-circus policy by combining their own with the Barnum & Bailey circus. It has opened the way not only for trained horse numbers in sets of five, but for other big, new displays.

The hippodrome track is utilized more than ever before. At one time it is completely circled by one hundred and fifty trained horses, each ridden by an expert, in an amazing ballet and "Fete of the Garlands." Again it is filled with glittering pageants, with splendid high-school horses or remarkable thoroughbreds that give thrilling exhibitions, while hundreds of clowns caper around.

Mission Beach Notes

By Mrs. F. G. Greenfield

Mr. and Mrs. McCullough of the McCullough sanitarium are occupying the Turner cottage on Ocean Front Walk.

Mrs. K. Segel, of 471 Ganahl street, Los Angeles, with her family, spent Saturday and Sunday at the Greenfield flats.

Mr. and Mrs. George McCances entertained friends last week-end at their home, their guests being Mr. McCances' sister, Edna McCances; Andy Stratton, from Hollywood, and Mr. an Mrs. Glen Goddard, of Escondido.

Mrs. J. W. Mott, prominent San Diego club woman and wife of Attorney J. W. Mott, entertained all day Tuesday at her beach home on Ocean Strandway, with a beautifully appointed sea-weed flower luncheon. The decorations throughout the rooms and the veranda, where the picnic tables were placed, were the California goldenrod, various sea plants, vines, and kelp vases. Ice cream, coffee and home-cooked dainties were served. The affair was held in honor of the past president of the San Diego Woman's club, Mrs. Martha W. Richardson, who has recently arrived from a "wonder trip" to Alaska. Mrs. Richardson, a gifted talker and talented leader, gave some interesting descriptions of the pleasures found on her trip. Mrs. J. W. Mott, the hostess, is a prominent and tireless worker in the Arts and Crafts department of the Woman's club. The beautiful kelp vases used were some of her own creations. Mrs. Mott said this was also a farewell to her beach home for the season, and she wanted to share the ocean beauties with her many friends once more. Swimming, stunts and stories in art took up the ever-changing hours. There were about thirty guests present, friends and executives of the club.

Mr. L. M. Hill, who has been with the Faber grocery for some time, and who has made hosts of friends while there, has left the store and is enjoying a rest and vacation. Mr. H. W. Offerdahol has taken his place to assist in the store, having charge of the meat department.

Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Peters, of Los Angeles, spent last Sunday at the Greenfield flats.

Attorney and Mrs. J. W. Mott motored to the Cuyamaca mountains last week, spending three days in a most wonderful setting of nature's grandeur, and while there they selected a cabin site.

Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Greenfield entertained Miss Jessie Kerby, of 3370 Albatross street, San Diego, last Sunday at their home on Ormond court.

Little Jack Manley was nearly drowned last week in Mission bay, while boating. It it had not been for the heroic efforts and quick thought and action of little Gordon Turner, his friend, son of Harry W. Turner, prominent real estate broker, he would have been lost. The lad had gone down for the third time, but young Turner got him "somehow," as he expressed it, and brought his friend into safety. We are proud of your courage, Gordon. Keep it up.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Starr have moved into their lovely new home on Verona court.

EXEMPTION PRIVILEGES FROM PHYSICAL EXAMINATIONS OF SCHOOL CHILDREN

With the opening of schools parents are faced with many perplexing questions as to certain school laws and their rights under same, and in order to be of assistance in meeting the present need for information along these lines, the Public School Protective League of Los Angeles and San Francisco, in its September Bulletin, makes the following announcement:

The public is advised that under Section 1618-A of the Political Code of California, the law provides that parents may for each child file annually with the principal a signed statement that they do not wish their child to have any physical examinations by the school authorities.

Parents who desire for their children exemption from all physical examinations are urged to use the exemption privilege and file a written notice or a League exemption card with the principal of the school in which such children may be enrolled. Do not send the request for exemption to the teacher. File one card each year, and file a card each year for each child. The Public School Protective League furnishes, upon request, blank cards for exemption in any quantity.

If any principal refuses to accept the exemption cards, parents should immediately notify the league and the matter will be taken up promptly.

The league's September bulletin discusses a number of school laws and other matters of vital importance to parents, and is being widely distributed over the state, in the desire to place this information in the hands of as many parents as care to avail themselves of it. The bulletin is sent free on application to the league's offices, 714 Union Bank building, Los Angeles, Calif.

Mister Quick

We're never known to loaf of "stall."
Test us with a hurry call.
—from the proverbs of Mr. Quick.

If you want plumbing assistance in a hurry, just give us a ring and say that it is important that we hurry. We'll speed like your message.
